- Theory

Tuesday Royko received her Bachelor of Music in Voice Performance (Distinction) from McGill University. Further studies lead her to Italy where she began her career in opera, musical theatre, radio and film. While in Italy, she maintained a private music studio and additionally taught in the public school system where she pioneered an integrated English and Music program for elementary school children.

After returning to Canada, her focus turned to her passion of teaching music to students of all ages and abilities. She currently teaches voice at the Canadian Mennonite University (Community School of Music and Arts), The University of Manitoba, Preparatory Division, Faculty of Music and maintains a busy home studio. She is a member of the Manitoba Registered Music Teachers Association. She accepts students in voice, piano, and theory of all ages, levels and abilities from children to seniors. Her area of expertise includes opera, musical theatre, classical and other styles. She has prepared countless students for music examinations, performances, festivals, competitions, auditions and university entrance. Many of her students have been recipients of awards, scholarships and trophies and have advanced into music programs at the university level with careers in opera, musical theatre, film and television.

Tuesday has a unique and customized approach to vocal training which meets the individual needs of each student. She believes in uncovering each student's individual learning style and works to motivate and build confidence in singing, technique and performance.
